GERMAN STUDIES DIRECTORY

The German Historical Institute in Washington, DC, is currently compiling information for a directory tentatively entitled German Studies in North America: A Directory of Scholars, Research & Publications. This directory will be available as a searchable online guide (<http://directory.ghi-dc.org>). It includes scholars (post-Ph.D.) based in the United States or Canada who are working on German themes in history as well as a variety of humanities and social science disciplines. The purpose of the directory is to facilitate collaboration and networking among scholars. The directory will be fully searchable and can be used to organize conferences and panels, find other scholars working in one's area of interest, and for any number of other academic purposes. Personal invitation emails will be sent out in the spring of 2003. If you have not been contacted and wish to be included, or if you have any questions or suggestions, please send an email to directory@ghi-dc.org.

DEUTSCHE FORSCHUNGSGEMEINSCHAFT DELEGATION VISITS THE GHI

On September 18, 2002, the director of the GHI, Christof Mauch, welcomed a delegation from the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG)—the German equivalent of the National Science Foundation and the National Endowment for Humanities—headed by its president, Professor Ernst-Ludwig Winnacker. For two hours, the delegation discussed issues of research funding and academic employment in Germany with GHI fellows and staff as well as German and American visiting scholars in a friendly and constructive atmosphere. While emphasizing that it was the task of the individual German states, not the DFG, to create long-term university positions, Professor Winnacker and his delegation promised that the DFG would accommodate the specific situation of scholars in the humanities by implementing the age and time limits on its fellowship programs with great flexibility in order to help alleviate the job market problems that many well-qualified junior scholars are facing. For the GHI, the visit provided a welcome opportunity to bring its transatlantic perspective to bear on the ongoing debates about the German university system.

LIBRARY REPORT

The GHI Library is proud to inform its readers of new acquisitions in several areas that significantly enhance our holdings. First, we expanded our collection of German city histories by approximately forty new titles, including histories of Frankfurt am Main, Nürnberg, and Dresden, but also of smaller towns like Stralsund, Schwerin, and Moers. Second, we have acquired the supplement to the Diazo-Ausgabe der Volltextverfilmung der Deutschen Zeitschriften des 18. und 19. Jahrhunderts. More than 70 titles will be added and will bring this microfiche collection to almost 600 journals. Every individual journal title is searchable in our online catalogue, and the microfiches are easily accessible through the Microfiche Reader/Printer in the Reading Room. Third, the library significantly expanded its collection of German "Americana" from the late eighteenth century to the present by purchasing more than five hundred eighteenth and nineteenth-century titles through antiquarian bookstores in Germany. This collection includes travel literature, biographies, letters, and memoirs. New titles will be added every year. Finally, the library acquired the complete parliamentary proceedings of the German Bundestag from 1949 to 1998, which complement the recently acquired Verhandlungen des Reichstags from 1867 to 1933. Together, these two series represent a superb resource for research on the political history of Germany from 1867 to the present and are fully accessible in open stacks.

We would like to express our gratitude to the following people and institutions for donating books to the GHI library: Deutsche Gesellschaft für Auswärtige Politik, Deutsches Historisches Institut Rom, Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung, Georg-Eckert-Institut, Gesellschaft für Exilforschung, Goethe Institut Washington, Jacob Rader Marcus Center, Monika Hein, Stadt Köln, Landeszentrale für politische Bildung Thüringen, Charlotte Lerg, Karl-Egon Lönne, Joe Mait, Patrice Poutros, Shirley J. Riemer, Simon-Dubnow-Institut, and Thomas Sowell.

RECIPIENTS OF GHI INTERNSHIPS

The GHI was again fortunate to have a number of excellent interns. All of them made important contributions to our work. The interns conducted research in libraries and archives, helped to prepare and run conferences, assisted editors and librarians, and cheerfully did all other tasks that were requested of them. We would like to thank Caroline Galm (University of Freiburg), Anna Held (University of Cologne), and Britta Kägler (University of Eichstätt).

STAFF CHANGES

MALVE BURNS left the GHI in November 2002 to assume the position of Associate Director for Major Gifts at Ithaca College, New York. While Malve happily followed her son’s family and two grandchildren to Ithaca, she reluctantly left the GHI and her colleagues in Washington. Her book Washington's Second Blair House: An Illustrated History (with photographs by Angela Laine) was published this winter.

ASTRID M. ECKERT, Research Fellow, joined the Institute in November 2002. She studied history and North American studies at the Free University of Berlin and was a Fulbright student at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She received an M. A. in American History from Michigan in 1995, and an M. A. in History from the Free University in 1998. During the academic year 1998/99, she was a Fox International Fellow at Yale University. Her first book, Feindbilder im Wandel. Ein Vergleich des Deutschland- und des Japanbildes in den USA 1945 und 1946 was published in 1999 (Münster: Lit Verlag). In 1999, she worked as an editor for the Berlin-Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften (BBAW) and prepared volume II of the history of the Prussian Academy of Science (1914–1945) for publication. In 2000, she was awarded a dissertation fellowship by the Studienstiftung des Deutschen Volkes, and research grants by the German Historical Institutes in Washington and London. Her dissertation, "Der Kampf um die Akten: Die Rückgabeverhandlungen um beschlagnahmtes deutsches Archivgut 1944–1958," was completed in September 2002. It deals with the capture of German records by the Western Allies in 1944/45, their subsequent use, and the negotiations for their eventual return. Her research interests include German-American relations, postwar Germany, archival and library history, issues of war, loot, and the restitution of cultural property, and transnational historiographical questions.

JANEL B. GALVANEK, Assistant Editor, joined the GHI in September 2002. She recently received her Master of Art's Degree from Georgetown University, where she studied German Language and Literature and completed her thesis entitled "Satan Revealed: Images of the Devil in Nineteenth-Century German Literature."

RAIMUND LAMMERSDORF, Research Fellow, left the Institute at the end of October 2002. He continues to work on his research project "Bitburg 1985: The Politics of Memory in Germany and the United States."

KLAUS LARRES joined the Institute as a Visiting Fellow. During the academic year 2002–03, he holds the Kissinger Chair in Foreign Policy and International Relations at the Library of Congress in Washington, DC, and is working on a comparative study on European-American relations during the Cold War and the post-Cold War era. He is the Jean Monnet Professor in European foreign and security policy at the Queen's University of Belfast in Northern Ireland. He was educated at Cologne University, the London School of Economics, and Manchester University in Britain and has published widely on the international history of the Cold War, British and American foreign policy, the history of European integration, German foreign and domestic policy, and German-American and Anglo-German relations. His monograph, Churchill's Cold War: The Politics of Personal Diplomacy, has just been published by Yale University Press. Other recent publications include: The Cold War: Essential Readings (edited with A. Lane, Longman, 2001), Uneasy Allies: British-German Relations and European Integration since 1945 (Oxford University Press, 2000), Germany since Unification: The Development of the Berlin Republic (2d ed., Palgrave, 2001), and Deutschland und die USA im 20. Jahrhundert: Geschichte der politischen Beziehungen (edited with T. Oppelland, Wissenschaftliche Buchgesellschaft, 1997). The volume The Cold War After Stalin: A New International History (edited with K. Osgood) will be published by Rowman & Littlefield in 2003; a monograph on Germany since World War II is forthcoming from Oxford University Press. He is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society and has held fellowships or visiting professorships at Oxford University, the University of Notre Dame, the University of Innsbruck, and the University of Jyväskylä in Finland. He can be reached at klar@loc.gov.

GEORG SCHILD is a Visiting Research Fellow at the GHI in 2002–03. Dr. Schild received his M.A. from the Free University of Berlin in 1989 and his Ph.D. from the University of Maryland at College Park. Since 1994 he has been teaching in the Department of Political Science at the University of Bonn, where he completed his Habilitation in 2001. His books include Zwischen Freiheit des Einzelnen und Wohlfahrtsstaat: Amerikanische Sozialpolitik im 20. Jahrhundert (Paderborn: Schöningh, 2003) and Die bedrohte Supermacht: Amerikanische Außenpolitik seit dem Ende des Kalten Krieges (Leverkusen: Leske und Budrich, 2002).

CHRIS WILEY, Systems Manager, joined the Institute in October 2002. He received his Master of Art's Degree in German and European Studies from Georgetown University in Spring 2002. He is currently a Ph.D. candidate in the History Department at Georgetown. His research interests include modern European diplomatic history, Germany and globalization, and European national identity.

BIRGIT ZISCHKE, Research Associate, joined the Institute in October 2002. After completing her undergraduate studies at the University of Cologne, she was awarded a DAAD scholarship for the United States and graduated from New York University in 1994 with an M.A. in American literature and politics. After working in Cologne for several years, she returned to the United States on a DAAD postgraduate fellowship. In 1999, she received an M.A. in international relations/economics from the School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) of the Johns Hopkins University. From 1999 to 2002, she worked at the World Bank, supervising ing projects that promote higher education reform and increase scientific and technological research capacity in client countries in Latin America. She provided analytical contributions to World Bank publications, including Higher Education in Brazil: Challenges and Options (2002) and Constructing Knowledge Societies: New Challenges for Tertiary Education (2002). Currently, she is preparing a report on lectures, conferences, workshops, and research fellowships at the GHI, which will be made available on the newly designed website. Prior to this position, she co-edited the GHI reference guide Research and Funding: A German-American Guide for Historians and Social Scientists, which was published in 1999. Her research interests include higher education reform, international research cooperation, brain drain effects, networks in immigrant communities, intergenerational analysis in immigrant families, and German-Jewish relations.
