The Friends of the German Historical Institute (FGHI) was founded by a group of American historians in 1991 to support the activities of the German Historical Institute, Washington, DC (GHI).

FGHI is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, whose officers include representatives of the American Historical Association, The Central European History Society, the German Studies Association, and the Society for German-American Studies.

The Friends serve as a link between the North American scholarly community and the GHI. The organization helps fund projects and initiatives that fall beyond the GHI's operating budget. The support provided by the Friends helps make possible many of the GHI's programs for young scholars and graduate students, its public events and its teaching resource projects.

The German Historical Institute
The GHI, Washington, DC is one of the largest centers for advanced historical research. The GHI
- supports research in German and American history;
- fosters transatlantic scholarly exchange and cooperation;
- invites students, scholars, and interested members of the public in the Washington region to attend its lecture series and use its extensive library collection.

Since its founding in 1987, the GHI has worked with more than 7,000 scholars from around the world. It publishes several book series in the U.S. and Europe. The GHI reports on its activities in its twice-yearly journal, Bulletin of the German Historical Institute.

The Fritz Stern Dissertation Prize
The Friends award the Fritz Stern Dissertation Prize each year for the best doctoral dissertation completed at North American universities on a theme in German history, German-American relations, or the history of Germans in North America. The Prize is named for Fritz Stern, Professor Emeritus and former Provost of Columbia University. Fritz Stern is an internationally recognized historian of modern Germany and a long-standing advocate of closer relations between Germany and the United States.

Candidates are nominated by their dissertation supervisors. A committee of distinguished scholars, which the Friends appoint, reviews the dissertations and selects the winner. The Stern Prize currently carries an award of $2000. Each year, the recipient is brought to Washington to present his or her research at the Friends' Annual Symposium.

Gerald D. Feldman Memorial Lecture
The Friends fund an annual lecture as a memorial to Gerald D. Feldman (1937-2007), who taught history at the University of California, Berkeley, and was a founder of the Friends, serving as Chairman of the Board from 2002 until his death. During his lifetime, he contributed significantly to the transatlantic historical dialogue, and the annual lecture serves to bring to the public important new ideas in this field presented by major historians following in Professor Feldman's footsteps.
