German Historical Institute Fellowship Program
The German Historical Institute seeks to further transatlantic dialogue between European and North American academics by offering fellowships open to scholars from both sides of the Atlantic. It is particularly committed to supporting doctoral and postdoctoral research through a variety of competitive fellowships, including but not limited to:

- Short-term doctoral and postdoctoral fellowships
- Long-term fellowships in key research foci of the GHI
- The Binational Tandem Research Program
- The Gerda Henkel Postdoctoral Fellowship for Digital History
- The GHI Fellowship at the Joseph Horner Memorial Library
- The Max Weber Stiftung Gerald D. Feldman Travel Stipend
- The Volkswagen Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowship in the Humanities at Universities and Research Institutes in the United States and Germany

For further information on application guidelines, the latest stipend amounts, and other funding opportunities, please visit our website at www.ghi-dc.org/fellowships
Short-term Fellowships

The GHI awards short-term fellowships to European and North American doctoral students as well as postdoctoral scholars to conduct archival research in the United States. The fellowships are open to scholars and students working in the fields of German history, the history of German-American relations, the history of the role of Germany and the United States in international relations, and American history. The research projects must draw upon primary sources located in the United States and should make use of historical methods and engage with the relevant historiography.

- Duration: 1 - 5 Months
- Deadlines: April 1 and October 1
- Start Date: within 1 year of notification
Long-term Fellowships

The GHI awards long-term fellowships to European and North American doctoral students as well as postdoctoral scholars to strengthen key research areas at the Institute. These fellowships are in residence at the GHI. Fellows have the opportunity to make use of the resources in the Washington, DC, area as well as to travel within the United States to work in archives and libraries. Currently, the program offers fellowships in the following fields: the history of knowledge, the history of race and ethnicity, the history of religion and religiosity, the history of family and kinship, the history of migration, and North American history. Proposed research projects should make use of historical methods and engage with the relevant historiography.

- Duration: 6 - 12 Months
- Deadline: December 1
- Start Date: September 1
The GHI, in cooperation with the BMW Center for German and European Studies at Georgetown University, offers German and North American scholars the opportunity to develop binational research tandems in the following program areas: the history of knowledge and knowledge cultures; and global and trans-regional history. The program is designed for postdoctoral, mid-career, and established historians from Germany and North America. The GHI encourages applications from both pairs and individuals for collaboration and the sharing of ideas from the other country/region.

- Duration: 12 Months
- Deadline: August 1
- Start Date: September 1 of the following year

Gerda Henkel Postdoctoral Fellowship in Digital History

The GHI awards a year-long fellowship to German postdoctoral scholars to be in residence for a year at the Roy Rosenzweig Center for History and New Media at the George Mason University (RRCHNM) to develop an innovative research project in digital history.

- Duration: 12 Months
- Deadline: December 1
- Start Date: Fall semester at George Mason University