The Friends of the German Historical Institute (FGHI), based in Washington, DC, is a not-for-profit organization founded on October 2, 1991, by leading American historians to support the programs of the German Historical Institute. Its officers represent major professional associations such as the American Historical Association, the Conference Group for Central European History, the German Studies Association, and the Society for German-American Studies.

The purpose of the Friends is to provide a link between the North American academic community and the GHI, and to support special programs. The GHI receives its primary funding from the German government. New initiatives, especially those for younger scholars and public events, are dependent on external funding, which the Friends help to garner. Such fund-raising is one of its missions. Currently, the FGHI supports the monumental Internet project, German History in Documents and Images, and the Anti-Nazi Resistance Project. At the Annual Symposium, the FGHI awards the Fritz Stern Dissertation Prize for the two best dissertations in German history, German-American relations, or the history of Germans in America. Other events include the Lectures of the Friends of the GHI on topics in German history.
